Summit Bank Supports Hurricane Harvey Relief Efforts

Oakland, Ca. – Business Wire – August 30, 2017

Summit Bank (OTCBB: SMAL) is supporting emergency relief efforts in southeastern Texas following Hurricane Harvey. The Category 4 storm hit southeastern Texas on August 25, destroying homes, knocking out power and forcing thousands of residents to flee. The storm is causing devastating floods, cutting off all transportation and overwhelming rescuers with the number of calls for help.

Summit Bank is initially donating $2,500 to the Hurricane Harvey Community Bank Relief fund. The funds will help support community bankers, their employees and families affected by Hurricane Harvey. 100% of these funds will go directly to those affected. In addition, Summit Bank has started an employee donation drive which the bank will match up to an additional $2,500.

“Summit Bank and other community banks throughout the nation are working quickly to provide financial support to our fellow community bankers in these severally impacted communities to help alleviate the suffering” says Tom Duryea, CEO. “The emergency responders are doing everything possible to rescue and assist the people of Texas who are impacted by Hurricane Harvey, but much more still needs to be done. We encourage all businesses and their teams to give what they can to support our Texas community.”

Summit Bank and its disaster relief community banking partners will continue to diligently monitor the situation to provide support as needed.
